Protect & Maintain Your Vision

with the specialists in senior eye care

Even if you're not experiencing vision difficulties, the American Optometric Association recommends annual exams for seniors 61 and older, and exams every two years for adults ages 18 to 60. These exams are vital to ensuring early detection of eye conditions and diseases that become more common with age, such as glaucoma, age-related macular degeneration and cataracts. If you are due for an appointment, we encourage you to schedule a comprehensive exam with one of our experienced ophthalmologists, so we can help ensure you enjoy a lifetime of healthy vision with the best in detection, diagnosis and treatment.
